OF THE INLAND EMPIRE

First Government "Good Road."
The last finishing touch to the experimental road in Bellingham, from which the government experts come to Walla Walla, were completed last Saturday. This is the first experimental road built by government cooperation west of the Rocky mountains, and is said by United States Highway Commissioner Abbott to be the finest of its kind ever constructed.

It is a strip of macadam 2050 feet in length, 15 feet wide, nine inches in depth in the center and five inches in depth on each side. In the construction the very best road-making machinery has been used, and Mr. Abbott says the improvement should last a lifetime if the road is given proper care.

The cost of the construction is divided between the United States government, Whatcom county and the city of Bellingham.

The government furnished the machinery, and the experts in charge of the work and the material and labor were furnished by the county and city—Walla Walla Union.

Burn Their Mortgage.

Happy is a feeble term when applied to those who gathered at the Christian church Saturday evening for the purpose of annihilating a small, innocent looking piece of paper that has been to them a heavy burden for the past 12 years. Money was borrowed to help build the church and it would seem at times to the struggling few that the cause was almost hopeless, but after long faithful work they were able to burn their mortgage. And as the flames were consuming it, the audience reverently sang, "Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow."—The Dalles Chronicle.

Marble on John Day.

Few people in this section realize that one of the richest marble deposits in the United States is located in this county; only a few miles from John Day. The deposit in question is located on Indian creek and is the property of D. M. Butler.

Mr. Butler has been using this marble rock for making lime, which he has sold through the valley for building purposes. Until lately he was not aware of the value of the rock. His attention has been called to the matter, however, by parties who are familiar with the marble business.

Mr. Butler brought a piece of the marble to John Day last week and left it with Mr. Turner, the Baker City stonecutter, who is working on the bank building. Mr. Turner has experimented with the rock and finds that it takes an excellent polish. He is highly pleased with his experiment and is seriously considering the proposition of remaining in the valley and operating marble works.—Grant county News.

Marion Will Ask Donation.

On Saturday, October 22, the county court of Marion county has invited the taxpayers and citizens of the county to meet at the court house in this city for the purpose of discussing the advisability of appropriating a sufficient sum of money to secure and maintain an exhibit of the resources of the county at the Lewis and Clark fair at Portland next year.

The court believes that it is a worthy project, and will result in much good to the entire county, but hesitates to appropriate county funds for the purpose until the taxpayers are consulted. From reports from various sections of the county there seems to be an almost unanimous feeling that an exhibit should be maintained at the big fair.

The people of Marion county have never failed to respond liberally with their time and money when the good of the county demanded action, and they will not fail in this instance. Marion county should have the best county exhibit at the fair, and now is the time to start to work.—Salem Journal.

Coal on the Umpqua.

R. W. Fenn, secretary and engineer of the Umpqua Coal Co., returned from the mines Friday night and reports 30 inches of very high grade coal in the new tunnel on the opposite side of the mountain from the first workings, at the depth of 79 feet in the tunnel. This seam is constantly widening out in the vein. The company is doubling its force in the field this week and will work two tunnels simultaneously.—Roseburg Review.
